Markus Rose is the editor and founder of Rosecast.com.

Rosecast is a name that has been derived from the word “forecast”, with two letters changed to symbolize a forecast that is meant to stand out among others.

Markus founded Rosecast.com in May of 2002. Rosecast.com started out as an internet-based financial markets newsletter. Today, Rosecast.com provides various services that range from general astrology software to minute-by-minute exact indicators for intraday trading. All services are based on financial astrology which is the core specialty of Rosecast.com.

Markus comments on astrology, “In the Western world many intelligent and successful people reject the idea of astrology because they are taught that success depends on what you think and believe (“The Law of Attraction” and similar success coaching of all kinds), how you communicate (“NLP”), and how you feel (health, nutrition, exercise, relationships, and status symbols). In this self-responsible equation to success there is no place for astrology or any other factors that are outside the control of the “self”.

“What most successful people have not realized yet is that a self-responsible approach to success and the validity of astrology do not stand in contradiction. After all, most successful people will agree that they go through ups and downs and it is these ups and downs that are a result of the ever-changing planets in the skies.”

He continues: “Without the influences of the planets there would be no ‘ups and downs’, everything would be static on our planet and there would only be one market timer in first place in the Timer Digest rankings all the time. How boring is that?! But the stars in the skies are leveling the playing field, are challenging all of humankind, and are giving the outsiders a chance to win against the champions. Humans have free will, they are not victims or puppets of the planets, and they do have the ability to respond to all the challenges in the skies with success. The ever-changing planets in the skies are a necessity for humans to have a learning experience on Earth.” And Markus admits that, “What you choose to believe, what you choose to think, and how you choose to respond to the challenges of the stars are much more important for your success than any knowledge of astrology.”

However, if you are ever uncertain which way to choose and do not get a direction from your “gut”—Markus compares the “gut” feeling to a wise, omnipotent astrologer with perfect knowledge of the future that is guiding every human all the time—then a good astrologer will be able to give you an important insight that can help you on your path to success. Markus concludes this short treatise on general astrology with a final piece of advice, “Your gut feeling can be strengthened through meditation.”

When talking about financial astrology, however, the story is a different one. Financial markets do NOT have “free will”. The Euro currency was born on January 1, 1999. Using the horoscope of the Euro, the most important highs and lows can be forecasted with the proper knowledge of financial astrology. Markus explains, “The Euro cannot decide for itself, respond to challenges, or shape its destiny through its choices like a human. Instead the future of the Euro and the futures of all other freely traded financial markets are written in the stars.”

Markus adds: “The Rosecast approach to financial astrology is much more ‘fatalistic’ than the approaches of our colleagues. Most financial astrologers list astrology as only one factor that influences their decision-making process. Other factors could be cycles, market psychology, sentiment readings, or technical analysis. However, we at Rosecast.com use financial astrology as the sole input for all our trading decisions and Timer Digest signals. We believe that astrology is the supreme study that can give us total understanding of all market movements ranging from a few minutes to several years, or even decades. The advantage of this philosophy is that we do not waste our research time on factors other than astrology and can thus develop a strong competence in financial astrology.

Right now our financial astrology research at Rosecast.com is focusing on tiny intraday movements of a few minutes only. It is most fascinating to us that financial markets respond to astrological factors even in such small time frames. TAP (Time Action Pivots) is an automated report of more than 1000 astrological calculations each day—generated by our proprietary software—that has the aim to filter the most important intraday trend change times for each trading day.

To complete the presentation of Rosecast, Markus provided a view on the longer term future of the US stock market since he is often asked about this topic. “Surprisingly, our indicators are predominantly bullish into the second to third quarters of 2011, but in the year 2012 we could see another sudden stock market crash. Moreover, some governments might have to default on some of their debts. This will make some currencies disappear, merging into new ones. All this will dramatically change the financial world as we know it. The astrological catalyst for these big changes is the upcoming square aspect between the slow-moving planets Uranus and Pluto that will hit in June of 2012 for the first time. The last time this aspect was exact was in the years 1932 and 1933. Markus concludes, “The year 2012 is the year that the ancient Mayan astrologers have long forecasted as the end of the world”. However, Markus is optimistic that humankind will be able to live up to the planetary challenges of the year 2012, and if he is correct, then we shall not see the end, but the beginning of a new world in which governments, big businesses, and power (symbolized by Pluto) are transcended with greater freedom, spirituality, and astrology (symbolized by Uranus) for the greater benefit of all human beings.
